

Generation Jobless

Watch and make notes on the main points of this documentary, then specifically comment on the following:

- How many individuals graduate each year from Canadian institutions?
- What does it mean when they say that these institutions are preparing students for jobs that don't exist? Give an example of one such occupation mentioned that may fit this description.
- How many different jobs can a young person expect to have by the age 30?
- 'Temporary is considered the new normal.' Why? Normal to what?
- Why are young people the most likely to be the first laid off?
- How does the University guarantee employment within 6 months of graduating from their institution? What options are there / does the university do if this doesn't occur?
- Why are young people competing with their parents for the same jobs?
- What is the connection between automation and unemployment?
- Why does the documentary refer to 'service industry' jobs as a trap for students and new graduates?
- What lessons might you take from this documentary? How might this video help you better prepare for a post-graduation job search?
